Maintenance Improvement Objectives - Cape Class Domenic Pansini AUSTAL

Abstract

The Presentation will be covering the following:

- The current role of Naval architects at Austal
- The expanding market of ship building in WA
- The direction Austal are heading - and how Graduate Nav Architects can Capitalise on this.
- How Naval architects / graduates can improve their role and secure further work within the company.
- The answer to the above is C.B.M. (conditioned based and predictive maintenance)
- How Graduate Naval Architects can assist / integrate here
- C.B.M and Maintenance is the new "growth industry"

About the Presenter

Domenic Pansini is a multi-qualified Marine Chief Engineer and Open A grade Marine electrical tech - specialising in Maintenance system development, managing complex projects and optimising maintenance for large offshore Oil & gas Companies. Domenic's 32-year career started as an S.C.R or electronics technician, and progressed through Maritime college to complete the final years of his career as a Chief Engineer on State-of-the-art 7th generation, dual activity drill ships. He has worked on the design, build and final commissioning of new Vessels for Transocean and Maersk in Singapore and DSME shipyards in South Korea and Malta. He has also been factory trained in South Korea, Singapore, Germany and Norway on Marine propulsion and Oil & Gas equipment, and have specialist level knowledge in Both Safety case and Condition based maintenance development. Presently he is working as Senior Maintenance Engineer for Austal Defence programme. Brief includes - transitioning the company from present breakdown maintenance to an industry leading Condition based maintenance.

RINA NEWS & Events

Committee Updates

The WA Committee has recently welcomed Hadiqa Khan as a new casual committee member. Hadiqa will be assisting the WA Section committee in organizing the many upcoming events we are hosting. Please make her feel welcome the next time you see her.

The committee has an opening for a new position of an Advertising Manager for RINA Australian Naval Architect publication. The role is a voluntary position, to identify possible ANA advertisers and establish personal contact. If anyone is interested, please reach out to the committee for further details by email: WA@rina.org.uk
We encourage feedback and are more than happy to speak with anyone who would like to know more information about the Committee activities.

The Committee can always be contacted by email: WA@rina.org.uk
