WARSHIP 2026 - SCALING THE FLEET – DELIVERING ADDED MASS WITH AFFORDABLE MINOR WARSHIPS

ABOUT THE EVENT

Following the success of Warship 2024 in Adelaide, which brought together over 230 delegates, Warship 2026 returns to Australia as a major international forum for naval architects, designers, engineers, and maritime technologists, alongside defence organisations, industry specialists, and academics from around the world.

The conference will focus on the technical and strategic challenges of scaling fleets through affordable minor warships, while exploring the wider technologies, design approaches, and operational practices that enable increased fleet capability. Delegates will examine how integration, availability, autonomy, optionally crewed systems, lean crewing, technological advancement, and more sustainable build techniques are shaping modern fleet design and delivery.

Attendees will hear from leading international speakers, participate in in-depth technical discussions, and connect with peers across the global naval architecture, defence, and maritime engineering communities. Warship 2026 provides a unique opportunity to gain insight into emerging trends, share practical solutions, and explore how innovative design and engineering approaches are shaping the next generation of scalable naval capability, helping professionals and organisations stay at the forefront of fleet development and maritime innovation.

HEAR FROM OUR PREVIOUS SPONSOR

“We found our booth had extensive engagement with the project on display and with industry personnel keen to connect further with the University of Adelaide and our Flume. The event provided valuable opportunities to inform delegates about our highly regarded Masters in Maritime Engineering, which includes naval architecture courses, and to raise awareness among industry networks.”
